West Virginia State of the Arts Survey

The West Virginia State of the Arts Survey enables community leaders to identify arts education strengths and deficiencies in West Virginia's K-12 public schools in order to celebrate strengths and to take steps toward improvement. Prior to this survey, no comprehensive scientific data existed to measure how West Virginia's public schools are performing in music, drama, visual art or dance.

This comprehensive survey amassed quantitative and qualitative information about the breadth and depth of arts education programs and curriculum in each of West Virginia's fifty-five counties. It determined, for example, how many minutes per week the average child at each grade level participates in each arts discipline, the extent to which artists-in-residence are employed in the classroom, whether there are classrooms dedicated to each of the arts, and other relevant information. The survey also gathered information about the qualifications of existing arts teachers, particularly whether or not they are certified in the discipline they teach and the extent to which they participate in professional development in the arts.

The results of the West Virginia State of the Arts Survey have been compiled into a report that will be shared with education, legislative and arts leaders throughout the state. This survey presents a unique opportunity to thoroughly document the strengths and challenges of arts education curricula across the state. In general, this baseline profile will assist AEI, state agencies and independent arts education organizations to more effectively target advocacy and program intervention where it is needed the most. Specifically, the findings from this research will enable AEI and other arts organizations to develop grassroots programs relevant to specific counties and communities. It will also reveal to prospective funders that there is a need for supplemental funding for arts education programming in West Virginia.

In short, AEI will use the results of the West Virginia State of the Arts Survey in the following ways:

- To serve as a needs analysis to guide AEI, state agencies, independent arts education organizations and others' programming to serve the greatest need
- To make a case to prospective funders of arts education that a need exists in West Virginia
- To provide a baseline of arts education in West Virginia by which to compare improvement; AEI's goal is to conduct the Survey again in three years in order to assess improvement in arts education
- Share the information revealed by the West Virginia State of the Arts Survey with education, legislative and arts leaders throughout the state to enable improvement

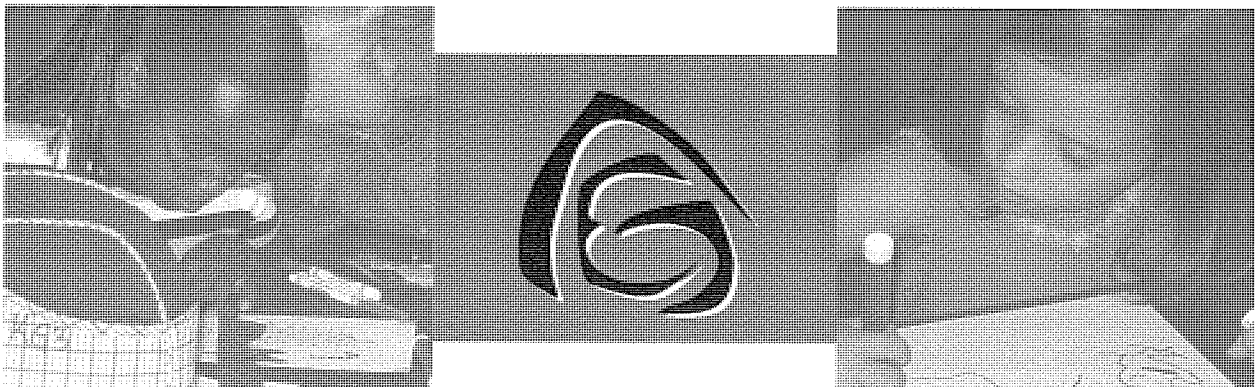

Methodology

The survey instrument was developed and tested by the Ohio Alliance for Arts Education. It consists of 112 multiple choice questions, and has been statistically analyzed for reliability and validity. AEI does not guarantee the accuracy of the survey results, as the information is based on the feedback of one or a few county school personnel.

AEI has determined the following information for each county: the percentage of students being taught music, visual arts, theater and dance by an arts specialist; the number of minutes per week the average student receives arts instruction at each grade level; the types of music, visual arts, theater and dance programs, clubs and organizations available for students at each grade level; the arts education professional development opportunities available to general classroom teachers and arts specialists; the availability of afterschool, summer and other extracurricular and private arts programming; and the funding sources of arts programs, arts teachers and professional development, both including, and in addition to, the state budget.

The information contained in the survey was received by conducting face-to-face or telephone interviews with the county arts contacts in each of West Virginia's 55 counties. The arts contact is designated by the WV Department of Education and is the person who is responsible for distributing relevant information to teachers of all arts content areas. Each year, Julia Lee, Fine Arts Coordinator for the Department of Education, sends out a questionnaire to contacts in each county in order to assure that this position is filled. These contacts consist of either the Assistant Superintendent, Director of Curriculum and Instruction, Curriculum Supervisor, Administrative Assistant, Director of Specific Programs, Associate Superintendent of Curriculum and Instruction, Superintendent, Director of Vocational Education, Director of Elementary Education, Director of Secondary Schools, Art Curriculum Specialist, Director of Instruction, Deputy Director, Arts Supervisor, Fine Arts Coordinator, Staff Development Supervisor, Supervisor of Humanities, Art Teacher, Drama/Fine Arts Chairperson, or County Office Director. The arts contact has either chosen this responsibility or is assigned the position. AEI interviewed this group of people because information regarding arts curriculum and arts activities coming directly from the state department of education passes through their hands, giving them insight and access to the status of arts education in their county.

Methodology

If a face-to-face or telephone interview could not be set up with the arts contact, AEI arranged to mail or e-mail the survey in order for the arts contact to complete and return the survey to AEI.

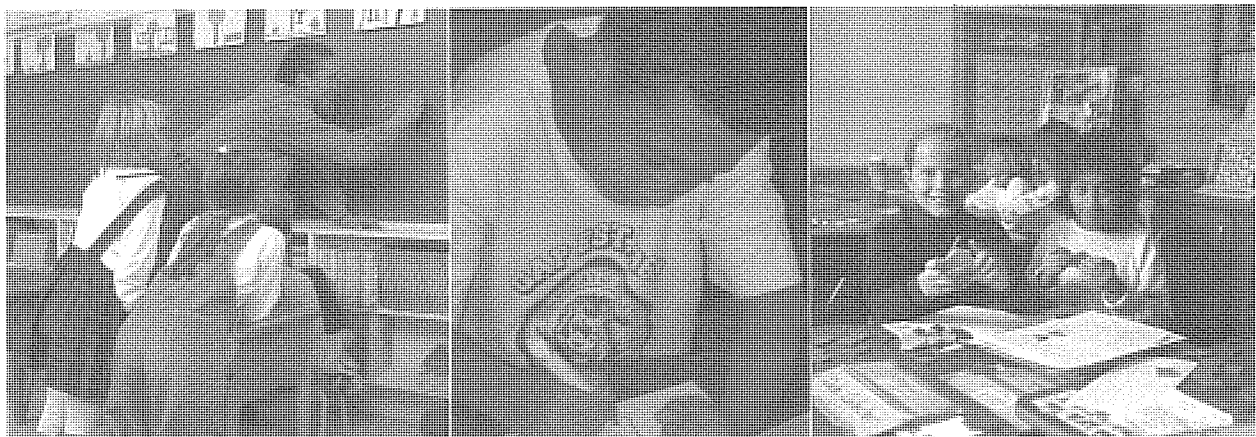

Each interview began by informing the arts contact of AEI's presence or desired presence in his or her county, explaining AEI's mission, and providing the arts contact with general information about AEI. The questions on the survey were then asked and recorded by the AEI's Director of Programs, Melanie Roberson. Questions were asked exactly as they appeared on the survey questionnaire so as to preserve the survey's validity.

After AEI received each county's completed survey, the information was then given to West Virginia University's Survey Research Center, the statistician for the West Virginia State of the Arts Survey, for professional data analysis. The survey is broken into two parts:

1. West Virginia's over-all state analysis of arts education
 2. West Virginia County Profiles: each county's response to specific arts education questions

In the short-term, this data will provide a comprehensive look at arts education in every county, thereby strengthening the statement of need for supplemental funding for arts education. The long-term results of the survey's findings will serve as a needs assessment and will assist AEI, other education agencies and county administrators in seeking systemic ways through long-term planning and allocation of resources to make the arts a meaningful part of the life of every child in West Virginia. Where the arts are struggling, county superintendents must be encouraged to seek creative ways to accommodate a strong core curriculum while maintaining quality arts instruction. The West Virginia State of the Arts Survey will also be a catalyst to coalesce AEI, state agencies, legislators, parents and school administrators in developing a cohesive advocacy network for arts education.

West Virginia State of the Arts Survey

Results Summary

The West Virginia State of the Arts Survey was completed by the following groups of people: curriculum administrators (34.5%), county-level administrators (23.6%), assistant superintendents (21.8%), arts education teachers (18.2%), and superintendents (1.8%).

ARTS NEEDS

When the respondents were asked to select the most critical needs in West Virginia arts education programs, the top three responses were: a lack of materials and supplies, insufficient scheduling time, and inadequate facilities.

ARTS-DESIGNATED CLASSROOMS

The existence of arts-designated classrooms varies greatly depending on the art form. Twenty percent of respondents indicated that all schools in their counties have a Music classroom that is equipped and assigned primarily for instruction in Music. Only 9.1% of respondents said that all schools in their counties have a Visual Art classroom equipped and assigned primarily for instruction in the Visual Arts. There are a high percentage of counties, 34.5%, that have no schools with classrooms that are equipped and assigned primarily for Drama/Theater instruction. In fact, only 7.3% of the respondents indicated that most schools have classrooms assigned for Drama instruction. Classrooms equipped and designed specifically for Dance instruction are almost completely lacking in West Virginia schools. 76.4% of respondents indicated that no schools are equipped and assigned for Dance instruction, and only 1.8% of respondents indicated that there are dance rooms in most schools in their counties.

ARTIST-IN-RESIDENCY PROGRAMS

The survey data suggests that there is a need for high quality, statewide artist-in-residence programs in West Virginia's public schools. While some respondents indicate that they have received artists-in-residence in Visual Art during the last three years, over two-thirds (67.3%) of the Visual Art programs do not have current artist-in-residence programs. The percentage of Music programs that do not have a current artist-in-residence program is 72.7%. Additionally, 78.2% of the counties do not have a current artist-in-residence program for Drama/Theater. An extremely high percentage of Dance programs, 85.5%, do not have a current artist-in-residence program.

EXTRACURRICULAR ARTS ACTIVITIES

Music and Drama/Theater are the most popular extracurricular arts activities. A whopping 96.4% of respondents indicated that grades 9-12 have extracurricular Music programs. 78.2% of grades 7-8 offer extracurricular Music programs. The percentages decrease in grades K-3 and grades 4-6. 74.5% of respondents said that their counties' extracurricular Music programs are conducted by arts certificated/licensed employees with a supplemental contract.

Similarly, 78.2% of respondents said that grades 9-12 have extracurricular activities in Drama/Theater. The percentage greatly decreases in grades K-3, grades 4-6 and grades 7-8. The counties that offer extracurricular activities in Drama/Theater indicate that only 40% of the activities are conducted by arts certificated/licensed employees with a supplemental contact.

West Virginia is lacking in extracurricular activities in Visual Art and Dance. The data suggests that 52.7% of counties do not have extracurricular activities available in Visual Arts. Of the counties that do, only 29% said that the programs are conducted by arts certificated/licensed employees with a supplemental contract. Further, 52.7% of counties do not have extracurricular activities available in Dance. Of the counties that do, only 12.7% of respondents indicated that those programs are being conducted by arts certificated/licensed employees with a supplemental contact.

ARTS INSTRUCTION IN GRADES K - 3

Not all K-3 Visual Art, Music, Drama/Theater, and Dance instruction is being taught by arts certificated/licensed employees. In fact, a large percentage of arts instruction is not being taught by arts specialists. For example, most K-3 students in West Virginia are not receiving Drama/Theater or Dance instruction. Of the small percentage that are, they are usually instructed by non-arts-certificated employees. In the Visual Arts, 58.2% of respondents indicated that 81% to 100% of in-school K-3 instruction is given by an arts certificated/licensed employee. It is encouraging, however, to see that most K-3 students are receiving Music instruction from a Music education specialist. 85.5% of respondents indicated that 81% to 100% of in-school K-3 Music instruction is taught by an arts certificated/licensed employee.

78.2% of students in grades K-3 receive 0 minutes of Drama/Theater instruction per week. Of the low percentage of students that do receive Drama/Theater instruction, 11.1% of respondents said that only 1% to 20% of these instructional minutes are taught by Theater education specialists. A slightly higher 83.6% of respondents indicated that K-3 students receive 0 minutes of Dance instruction per week. Of the low percentage of students that do receive Dance instruction, 12.7% of respondents said that only 1% to 20% of these instructional minutes are taught by Dance education specialists.

ARTS INSTRUCTION IN GRADES 4 - 6

Again, not all Visual Art, Music, Drama/Theater, and Dance instruction in grades 4 through 6 is being given by arts certificated/licensed employees. Most 4th through 6th grade students are not receiving Drama/Theater and Dance instruction. Of the small percentage of students receiving Drama/Theater and Dance, they are generally instructed by non-arts-certificated teachers. 67.3% of respondents said that 81% to 100% of in-school Visual Art instruction in grades 4 through 6 is given by a certificated/licensed Visual Art specialist. 92.7% of the respondents said that 81% to 100% of in-school Music instruction in grades 4 through 6 is taught by a certificated/licensed Music specialist. It is an important and extremely positive finding that most West Virginia public schools students are receiving Music instruction by a certificated/licensed Music specialist.

85.5% of respondents indicated that students in grades 4-6 receive 0 minutes of Drama/Theater instruction per week. Of the low percentage of students who do receive Drama/Theater instruction, 9.1% of respondents indicated that only 1% to 20% are taught by Theater specialists. 83.6% of respondents indicated that students in grades 4-6 receive 0 minutes of Dance instruction per week. Of the low percentage of students who do receive Dance instruction, 12.7% of respondents indicated that only 1% to 20% of instructional minutes are given by Dance specialists.

ARTS INSTRUCTION IN GRADES 7 - 8

A very high percentage of 7th and 8th grade Visual Art and Music students receive instruction from arts certificated/licensed specialists. Specifically, 96.4% of the respondents reported that 81% to 100% of Visual Art students in grades 7 and 8 are taught by certificated/licensed Visual Art specialists. 98.2% of the respondents said that 81% to 100% of Music students in grades 7 and 8 receive Music instruction by a Music specialist. Unfortunately, 78.2% of respondents indicated that students in grades 7 and 8 receive 0 minutes of Drama/Theater instruction per week. Of the low percentage of students who do receive Drama/Theater instruction, 3.6% of the respondents indicated that 81% to 100% of the instructional minutes are given by arts certificated/licensed employees. Further, 81.2% of the respondents indicated that students in grades 7 and 8 receive 0 minutes of Dance instruction per week. For the low percentage of students who do, only 1.8% of respondents indicated that 81% -100% of instruction is by Dance specialists. The 7th and 8th grade students who receive Drama/Theater and Dance instruction are largely being taught by non-arts-certificated employees.

ARTS INSTRUCTION IN GRADES 9 - 12

It is no surprise that there are more Visual Art and Music classes available to West Virginia students in grades 9 through 12 than Dance and Drama/Theater classes. 56.4% of respondents indicated that their counties offer 4 to 6 classes for their 9th through 12th grade Visual Art students. Similarly, 52.7% of respondents indicated that their counties offer 4 to 6 Music classes for their 9-12 Music students. 67.3% of respondents indicated that their counties offer 1 to 3 Drama classes for their 9th through 12th grade Drama/Theater students. 69.1% of respondents indicated that their counties offer 1 to 3 Dance classes for their 9th through 12th grade Dance Students.

ARTS PRIORITIES

Overall, the survey data suggests that Music and Visual Art are priorities over Drama/Theater and Dance. While many West Virginia public schools do not offer students consistent Music and Visual Art instruction, these courses are far more available than their Dance and Drama/Theater counterparts. West Virginia is sorely lacking in Dance and Drama/Theater programs, specifically at the elementary level.

When respondents were asked how important Dance is compared to other academic subjects, 63.6% of the respondents said that it is not as important. When asked how important Drama/Theater is when compared to other academic subjects, 56.4% of respondents said that it is not as important. On the other hand, when asked how important Music is when compared to other academic subjects, 63.6% of respondents said that it is as important as other subjects. Similarly, when asked how important Visual Art is when compared to other academic subjects, 60% of respondents said that it is as important as other subjects.

It is encouraging to learn that Visual Art and Music are valued by public school administrators as important academic subjects. It is also important that greater awareness is raised around the benefits of high quality Drama/Theater and Dance instruction to ensure West Virginia students have access to all of the arts.

SUMMARY

The West Virginia State of the Arts Survey reveals both the strengths and the weaknesses of arts programs in the public schools. The findings should be used as a basis for schools, state agencies and arts education organizations to effectively respond to arts education needs as articulated by public school administrators. Additionally, this information provides public school administrators and policy-makers a profile of each West Virginia county, allowing them to compare the findings by region. As a result of these statistical findings, AEI and others who champion the arts education cause will be better able to make a case for necessary improvement where schools fall short of attaining content standards and objectives.

Appalachian Education Initiative

Championing Change in Arts Education

Appalachian Education Initiative (AEI), founded in December 2001, is a not-for-profit organization committed to furthering arts education in West Virginia public schools and communities. AEI's board of directors is comprised of educators, arts specialists and business and corporate executives, all of whom are dedicated to keeping the arts a fundamental component in West Virginia schools.

The core mission of AEI is to strengthen the role of arts education in the public schools by promoting the essential role of arts education to a child's personal development, academic performance and workforce preparation. AEI spearheads, underwrites and supports education advocacy and research services designed to facilitate and expand arts education programming to benefit children throughout West Virginia.

Volumes of scientific studies exist documenting the positive effects of arts learning on a child's cognitive abilities, social skills and motivation to learn. Systematic application of the arts to a child's education, beginning at the elementary school level, enhances social development and fosters the multiple intelligences in children. By providing a complete education to our children, which includes the arts, we maximize their potential to become vital contributors to the community and the workforce as adults.
